1. Emir's Family

Emir lives with his parents and his grandmother in Ankara. His mother, Selin, is a pharmacist. She runs a small pharmacy near a big hospital. She serves customers and gives them advice about their medicine. Her pharmacy opens at half past eight, so she leaves home early every morning.

Emir's father, Murat, is an architect at an architectural firm. He designs schools and libraries. He usually works in the office, but on Thursdays, he visits building sites to check the work. At the moment, his team is designing a new upper secondary school with a large courtyard and a modern food technology room.

Emir's cousin, Deniz, is a content creator. She works remotely from home and publishes videos about healthy cooking. She also promotes products for some small food brands. Emir often helps her with filming at weekends because he loves cameras.

My Exchange Diary: A Week in Ankara

by Lars, 16, Norway

Back home in Bergen, I go to an upper secondary school near my house. Our lessons usually start at half past eight, and we rarely have exams in the first weeks of the term. That's why I don't often feel stressed at school.

This week, everything is different! I am staying with the Yılmaz family, and I am attending an upper secondary school in Ankara as an exchange student. Most lessons are in Turkish, so I sometimes feel anxious because I don't understand everything. Luckily, my host brother, Emir, is helping me a lot. He explains the difficult parts in English and never laughs at my mistakes.

The school has great facilities, such as a big courtyard, a food technology room and two basketball courts. After lessons, students take part in extracurricular activities. At home, I play chess with my grandfather every weekend, so I am joining the chess club here this week.

Right now, the whole school is preparing for Republic Day on 29 October. The literature club is rehearsing poems, and the music club is practising folk songs. Emir is a perfectionist, so he is practising his speech again and again. Every year at the Republic Day ceremony, students and teachers sing the National Anthem together, and then the celebration programme starts.

I think I am learning more than a language here. I am learning how a nation remembers its history with pride and joy.

2. Doğru cevap: Tam puan (15 puan): Öğrencinin yönergedeki beş soru için birer cümle kurması gerekir; her cümle 3 puandır (5×3 = 15 puan). Tam puan için cümlelerin yönergedeki soruyu cevaplaması, anlaşılır olması, tema kelimelerini (ev türü, oda, mobilya ya da ev aleti, ev içi etkinlik) içermesi ve hedef yapıların (Simple Present, Present Progressive, sıklık zarfları, iyelik sıfatları) doğru kullanılması gerekir. Bu bölüm yazma becerisine dayalı olduğu için öğrencilerin cümleleri birbirinden farklı olabilir. Kısmi puan: Her cümle aşağıdaki ölçütlere göre puanlanır; yazılmayan her cümle için 3 puan düşülür.
